Promoting healthy schools in Chicago: In Chicago, HSC advocates for policies and practices for all students to have equitable access to healthy school environments that allow them to learn and thrive. Healthy schools provide students with access to nutritious food, physical activity, safe and health-promoting outdoor spaces, and mental and physical health services. HSC has played a key role in supporting the adoption and successful implementation of nutrition standards and wellness policy improvements for Chicago Public Schools. HSC's Cooking up Change contest provides a voice for students in the conversation about healthy school meals. HSC also co-manages Space to Grow, an innovative partnership that transforms Chicago schoolyards into safe, shared green space for outdoor learning, connecting with nature, active play and environmental literacy while using green stormwater infrastructure to reduce neighborhood flooding. HSC works with Chicago parents, teachers and principals with knowledge and skills to create healthy schools. In addition, HSC works to help expand the availability of school-based health services for Chicago students.

Form and Line Reference: Part III Line 4b Schedule O Explanation

Promoting healthy schools nationally: HSC advocates for state and national policy around healthy schools that include access to essential school-based health services and safe environments. HSC has been a national leader in efforts to support states and school districts to expand the availability of school health services. At the national level, HSC co-leads the Healthy Students, Promising Futures national learning collaborative, which supports states in developing comprehensive school health service programs. At the state level in Illinois, HSC works to ensure that the conditions are in place for Chicago and other Illinois school districts to expand school-based health services for low-income students. HSC's Healthy Green Schools and Colleges initiative is a national leader in improving school cleaning practices, making school environments healthier for students and staff.
